

- Markoff, Count, Russian Ambassador in Paris, ii. 122.
- Marmont, Marshal (Duke of Ragusa), his letters to M. Bourrienne, i. 47, 48, 49; his marriage, 119; his despatch to Napoleon, 203; receives a letter from him, 204; had a command at Alexandria, 205, n.; regrets his absence from the battle of Austerlitz, iii. 8; assumes the command in Portugal, 236; captures Badajoz, 237, n.; demands reinforcements, 257; retires upon Sezanne, 343; defends Paris, 350; his remark to Bourrienne, 353; consents to surrender Paris, ib.; his defence praised by Napoleon, ib.; his conversation with him, 364; persuaded to quit Napoleon's army, 367; his reply to Prince Schwartzenberg, 368; quells the mutiny of his soldiers, 379; an examination into the motives of his actions, 380, ?i.; disapproves of the white cockade, 381; his complaints to the Emperor Alexander, ib.; passes over to the Allies, ib., n.; and Napoleon, iv. 33, «.; his proscription, 75, n.; his advice to Louis XVIII., 77; scheme for preparing to defend the Tuileries against Napoleon, 78, n.; the latter part of his career, 264.
- Massena, General, made Commander-in-Chief of Italy, i. 274; his defence of Genoa, 391; appointed to command the army in Italy, ii. 2; created a Marshal, 266; prisoners taken by, at the battle of Caldiero, 404; remarks on, iiif 235; recalled from Portugal, 236; notice of his defeat at Fuentes d'Onore, 237, n.; Napoleon's opinion of, iv. 47; end of his career, 268.
- Massias, M., his conversation with Napoleon, ii. 225.
- Maubreuil, M., important mission of, iv. 18; and the plot of Talleyrand and the Provisional Government against Napoleon, 18, n.
- Maximilian, Archduke, defends Vienna, iii. 171.
- Maxwell, Mr., his account of the battle of Waterloo, iv. 174.
- Mecklenburg, Duchess of, visits Madame Bourrienne, iii. 31.
- -, Princess of, remarks on her conduct, iii. 184.
- Schwerin, Duke of, his application to the Russian Court, iii. 31; takes refuge in Altona, 71; restored to his duchy, 90; regiment furnished by, 158.
- Strelitz, regiment furnished by, iii. 158.

Mehul, M., hymns set to music by, i. 110, ii. 6.

Melas, General, comparison between him and Napoleon, i. 388; sends a spy to the French lines, 389; his despatch to the council of Vienna intercepted, 391; negotiations with Napoleon, 399; convention between him and General Berthier, ii. 1.

Melzi, created Duke of Lodi, i. 59; chronology of life, 59, n.

Memoires de Constant, anecdote in, i. 42, n.; extracts from, 123, n., 281, n., 290, n., 318, n., 345, n., ii. 9, 49, n., 73.

--- de Mademoiselle Avrillion, extract from, ii. 341.

Memoirs of General Count Eapp, extract from, ii. 23, n.

- - of Lavallette, extract from, iv. 209.

- - of Napoleon, extracts from, i. 151, n., 152.

---- of the Duchesse d'Abrantks, anecdote in, i. 3, n.; extract from, 172.

- - of Rovigo, extracts from, i. 205, 212, 218, 398, ii. 163, iii. 77, n., 102; accounts in, of Napoleon's interview with Lord Whitworth, ii. 178, n.; of General Piche-gru's death, 254; of the marriage of Napoleon and Maria Louisa, iii. 191; of the battle of Wagram, 203.

- - of the Private Life, Return, and Reign of Napoleon in 1815, account of battle of Waterloo in, iv. 189.

- - of Sir Thomas Picton, extract from, iv. 171, n.

Memorial, a journal, i. 78.

- - de Sainte Helene, statement in, i. 81; extracts from, 206, n., 305, n., ii. 341, iii. 87, n.; on Madame R^camier and others, iv. 96.

Meneval, M., description of Napoleon's work-cabinet (1802), i. 342, n.; appointed assistant to Bourrienne, ii. 162; his letter* to him, 169.

Menou, General, division of, marches to Alexandria, i. 135; succeeds General Kle"ber in the command of the army in Egypt, ii. 11; his flattery to Napoleon, 58; ludicrous description of, 60, n.; Governor of Piedmont, 346.

Merlin, M., presents the code of Napoleon, ii. 147; a regicide, 280, n.

Messoudiah, sand wells of, i. 169.

Metternich, Prince, on liberty of the press, i. 334, n.; on Spanish affairs, iii. 100, n.; ambassador from Austria to Paris, 158; his intrigues, 159; allusion to, 224; letter to Baron Gagern, ib., n.; correspondence